

When Scott and I selected Ryan Jones & Associates to finish our house, we were in a mess with a new construction project that had been lagging for two years. Our optimism about the project had fizzled, along with our trust in contractors in general.

The first day that Ryan Jones & Associates took over the job, it was clear that we were working with true professionals that had our interests in mind. Our project manager Dan Beuth and his crew immediately cleaned up the site and had a definitive plan of action. After many sleepless nights, Scott and I were put at ease. Within the first week, we were meeting with Ryan's wonderful subcontractors and the project was in high speed towards completion. Ryan's crew took time to understand our vision and offered insight when needed. We were treated with kindness and respect that rivaled our previous experience. As the project progressed, we ran into issues that Ryan's team quickly identified and corrected while keeping our budget in mind. It was apparent that the quality of the finished product was of great importance to them. The men and woman that work for Ryan are in a class of their own. Once the issues were addressed and the house started coming together, the unparalleled skill of Ryan's tradesmen impressed all who entered.

Even after completion, Ryan Jones & Associates have stood by us in assisting with repairs from Hurricane Irma. We are pleased to learn that Ryan offers an annual maintenance plan for homes that he builds. Our relationship with Ryan Jones & Associates is one that will continue. Scott and I are overwhelmed with gratitude for their efforts in building our beautiful home.
